We began by sharing the story of The Great Race by Dawn Casey, the children listened attentively and responded with appropriate comments and questions. We discussed that this year is the year of the snake and worked out the year in which they were born and what this would mean in Chinese traditions. Some children showed fine motor skills by threading pasta to make snakes. All the children showed confidence in trying noodles for the first time cooked on the campfire and many thought they were delicious. The children were fascinated by the fire and were keen to make sure that we all stayed safe by following the fire pit rules.
